In October 1978, the Section for National Defense divided from the Natural Sciences and Mathematics Faculty and grew into an independent university-level educational and scientific institution – the Faculty of People’s Defense. To build upon and keep abreast of scientific achievements in the field of defense, protection and security, the Syllabus and Curriculum of the Faculty was renewed and its name was changed into the Faculty of Defense and Protection of the University of Belgrade, and then changed again into the Faculty of Civil Defense in the school year of 1990/1991.

As of May 2006, the official name of the Faculty is the Faculty of Security Studies, University of Belgrade.
